Ash fire almost destroys Eagle Lake home

GREG HOEKSTRA

Staff Reporter

An honest mistake nearly cost an Eagle Lake family their home last week after a cardboard box filled with fireplace ashes reignited and set their woodshed on fire in the middle of the night.

The Dysart fire department was called to the Parsons Road home around 3:20 a.m. on Friday morning. Family members had awakened to find their woodshed completely engulfed in flames. By the time the first truck arrived on the scene the shed was completely destroyed and flames were spreading across the front porch towards the main residence.

The family had managed to keep the cottage from catching fire by fighting back flames with a garden hose until firefighters arrived, but heat generated from the blaze was hot enough to crack the window in the front door.

Dysart Fire Chief Miles Maughan says that based on the path of the fire, the family is very fortunate to have wakened in time to avert a potentially devastating inferno.

"It could have been a lot different scenario," he says.

Maughan says that around 4:00 p.m. the previous day a family member had emptied out the cottage fireplace and placed the ashes - which appeared to be fully extinguished - in a cardboard box. The family member then took

Generally, any time the words "lakeside development" are spoken in Haliburton County, the developer in question is sure to face fierce opposition. Gerry Kowalski, owner of the Silver Beach trailer park on Wigamog Road, is hoping to soon buck that trend.

After years of meticulous planning and assessments, Kowalski is currently in the midst of a re-zoning application with the Municipality of Dysart. He wants to have the grounds of his trailer park approved for the construction and development of a "lifestyle community."

As the proposal stands now, the new development would include 36 bungalows and 23 townhouse units on the park's 22-acre property - a self-contained, condominium-style community groomed for seniors who want to live in the Highlands without having to maintain a large house or cottage. The proposal also includes some light commercial uses for the land, with the potential of establishing a community hall,

Point in Time: Family Services changes its name

Its offerings are the same, but Family Services will now be known by a new name with a new identity - Point in Time Centre for Children, Youth and Parents.

The new name, unveiled recently at the organization's tenth annual general meeting, came about in an effort to increase awareness of the organization. It is also hoped that a fresh new name, complete with a new logo, will generate publicity in the county and offer the agency an opportunity to inform people what it is they do and what services they offer.

"We basically felt that if we changed that image completely, we could then start to communicate to our local and more widespread community exactly the kinds of things we offer," says Penny Obee, the organization's president. "Our new name signals that there are moments in a family's life when it is important to reach out to others for help. We are there at that point in time."

Barb Fraser, Family Services' program supervisor, says the motivation behind a new image was also to clarify the organization's purpose in the county.

the box outside and placed it next to the woodshed.

It is not uncommon for fireplace owners to clean out old ashes from the hearth; however, one should always take extra caution when disposing of leftover ashes, even if they appear to be dead.

"Periodically [fireplaces] need to be clean out, but people don't realize that in the charcoal part, little pieces in it can stay live for a long time after burning," says Maughan.

When cleaning out a fireplace, Maughan suggests that people either spread the ashes on a safe piece of land and douse them with water, or otherwise dispose of them in a fire-resistant container. He estimates that his department responds to at least two calls a year for fires spawned from improperly disposed ashes, making it a persistent problem that only caution and education can solve.

And with the fall season now upon us, Maughan would also like to remind local residents and cottagers of the dangers associated with burning leaves, another persistent cause of careless fires in the county.

"To start off, I don't recommend you burn them at all," he says, suggesting instead that people try to find an area on their property to pile them, or alternatively, take them to the dump where they can be added to the yard waste compost pile.

"But if you have to burn them, then be sure to burn them in a safe location, and be aware of weather conditions. You shouldn't be burning leaves when there is high wind because fires can spread pretty quickly," he says.

Maughan advises people to never leave a leaf fire unwatched; a gust of wind can quickly turn a smoldering pile into a flaming hazard. He also says that it's better to burn many small piles of leaves over the course of time, rather than one large pile all at once.

Bylaws currently restrict Dysart residents from burning leaves during daylight hours until November 1st. Burning yard waste in the early morning or evening is completely permissible but officials ask that you exercise the necessary caution to prevent a potential mishap.

Media focus on Cody Hodgson begins here, there & everywhere news and events worth noting

IS THIS JUST THE BEGINNING OF FAME for Cody Hodgson? On Friday morning, CBC Radio reported that the 16-year-old centre with the Brampton Battalion scored his first goal in the Ontario League Team's first game of the season. Cody, who was born in Haliburton and spends his summers here, also had an assist in the 3-2 win against the Peterborough Petes. He also scored a goal in the 5-3 loss against the Belleville Bulls the next night. Stan Butler, the OHL team's director of hockey operations, says "Cody's the kind of guy you bring in and you can give him as much responsibility as you want right away." Cody, the son of Chris and Marie Hodgson, is a leading candidate for Ontario's under 17 team for the 2007 Canada Winter Games. The Battalion's website says he's been quick to notice the difference between minor hockey and the OHL. "It's a lot more intense, and the guys are so much bigger and stronger. The main thing I've learned is you have to bring it every shift. You can't slow down or the other team will jump on you."

Do you have osteoarthritis? You should attend a two-hour education session hosted by the physiotherapy department of Haliburton Highlands Health Services. The workshop will concentrate on osteoarthritis of the hip and knees. It will answer questions and outline a home exercise program to improve strength and flexibility. The next class is Wednesday, October 25 from 10 a.m. to noon at the Haliburton physiotherapy department. Please register by calling 457-1392 ext. 226.

The Peterborough Aids in Africa Coalition will be hosting two events on Wednesday, October 11 to raise funds for the Stephen Lewis Foundation. At 8 p.m. Mr. Lewis will be speaking about HIV/AIDS in Africa and the work of the Foundation at George St. United Church. Tickets are $25. "An Evening with Stephen Lewis" is a reception at 6:30 p.m. at St. John's Anglican Church. Tickets are $150 and include refreshments and preferred seating at the Lewis lecture. Tickets are available by e-mail, comanique@trentu.ca, or calling Su Ditta at 705 749-9101.

Buckle up – it's been the law for 30 years

This year marks the 30-year anniversary of mandatory seat belt usage in Ontario. This year's fall seat belt campaign runs through to Sunday, October 8.

It is crucial that all occupants of a motor vehicle wear their seat belts. Unbelted rear-seat passengers who have become high-speed projectiles often strike people in the front seat. A decision by one individual not to wear a seat belt may cause death or serious injury to those who choose to properly use the safety equipment provided.

Over the past 30 years, Ontario has made significant gains in seat belt compliance. As a result, many lives have been saved and serious injuries were prevented; however, there are still far too many deaths as a result of non-seat belt use.

On average, over a three-year period, 24 per cent of all people killed in a motor vehicle collision were not wearing their seat belt. This adds up to 115 people in 2004, 116 in 2005 and 69 so far this year.

Last year during the campaign officers from the Haliburton Highlands OPP detachment stopped 1,780 vehicles and laid 12 charges in relation to seatbelt violations.

HALIBURTON COUNTY COMMUNITY RADIO ASSOCIATION

Do you remember the song that goes like this: "The Lord told Noah to build an ark, arky..."? Well, Jim and Berniece Hollett, foreground, and Brian and Diane Plouffe, background, certainly do. They were among the 170 community members who sang the song with so much enthusiasm that organizers of last Tuesday's dinner for Extendicare volunteers decided to have everyone sing it twice. Extendicare had once again outdone itself decorating the Haliburton Legion, this year choosing the theme of Noah's Ark.

Volunteer spirit doesn't go unnoticed at Extendicare

GREG HOEKSTRA
Staff Reporter

It is sometimes said that volunteers are unpaid not because they are worthless but because they are priceless. Last Tuesday, Haliburton's Extendicare facility tried to underline that golden rule by hosting its annual volunteer recognition dinner at the Legion.

With nearly 170 community members turning out for the celebration, there was hardly an empty seat in the house when dinner was served. The majority of the guests were the volunteers themselves, but some Extendicare residents, family members, staff, and Murray Fearrey, reeve of Dysart et al, were also on hand for this year's Noah's Ark-themed event.

Barbara Menzies, Extendicare's resident program manager, estimates there are now more than 200 volunteers who lend their time to the long-term care facility, and the ways in which they help varies from one volunteer to the next.

Some assist with the evening entertainment program while others help run the bingo games, host reading sessions, or visit with residents one-on-one. But no matter how it is that they help, the annual volunteer dinner, says Menzies, is Extendicare's way of paying homage to all those individuals who make a selfless commitment to their community.

Those sentiments were echoed by Extendicare resident May Frost, who addressed the volunteers as they enjoyed dessert.

"Volunteering is just the nicest thing I think anyone can do. It's happy for you, and it's happy for me," said Frost. "Thank you so very much."

Fearrey, who was part of the team that Extendicare's resident program manager Barb Menzies joined Clarence Rowbotham and other residents in praising volunteers' work.

first brought the facility to Haliburton 30 years ago, also said a few words in recognition of the volunteers, stressing that their dedication is appreciated by all members of the community, not just the residents they deal with firsthand.

"Sometimes volunteers can go unnoticed, but they certainly don't go unnoticed in this community because you're doing what is most important," he said.

Speaking on behalf of the volunteers, Glenda Burk thanked staff and residents for the wonderful evening, and explained what makes volunteering at Extendicare such a unique experience for her.

"What impresses me is that it's not a facility to the residents, it's a home, and there is a sense of belonging there," she said. "I'd especially like to thank the residents for making us feel so welcome when we enter your home. We feel like we're part of your family, and for that we're very grateful."

Burk also made a point of tipping her hat to the full-time staff at the home, whose dedication is just as great as any volunteer's, said Burk.

"A lot of the credit goes to the wonderful staff there. It's not just a job for them. They love their residents, and that makes all the difference in the world."

"We don't really need to be rewarded, although we really do appreciate it," she said. "But our reward comes when we leave your presence, because we feel better when we walk out those doors than when we walked in."

As the evening drew to a close, and volunteers and residents filed out of the Legion side by side, Menzies took the time to thank each one for coming to the festivities. When the last patron had filed out the door, she noted that the date for next year's event had already been decided upon.

Volunteers should mark off September 18, 2007 on their calendars, said Menzies, but her lips remained sealed when it came to other details surrounding the evening.

"I'll never tell the theme, though. That's a secret."

Wind storm causes, and prevents, power outage

HydroOne had to spend so much time dealing with power outages caused by Sunday morning's windstorm that it didn't have the resources to carry through with a planned outage that night.

Residents had been preparing to have their lights turned out at 10 o'clock on Sunday night. HydroOne is making major changes that will separate power feeds to Haliburton and Eagle Lake. This will allow it to limit widespread power outages when damage is done to either area.

However, winds up to 100 km/h on Sunday morning knocked down so many power lines that HydroOne couldn't carry out its plans. At one point, power was out to more than 90,000 customers, most of them in areas already badly hit by the August 2 tornadoes and windstorms. Hardest hit was Bracebridge but several areas of Haliburton County were also affected, with 9,500 customers without power.

The last 500 customers in the Minden district were expected to have power back on by last night.

A new date for the planned outage has not yet been set.

"This is the third significant outage we have faced in as many months," says Myles D'Arcey, Hydro One's senior vice president, customer operations, in a press release. "As always, we deployed all available resources to the restoration effort so that we can minimize, to the extent possible, the impact of this recent outage on our customers. Again, we thank our customers for the patience and understanding they show us consistently during these times."

Haliburton Lake detour lengthens

MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

The county roads department is nervously optimistic that the road between Haliburton Lake and Eagle Lake will be re-opened by Thanksgiving weekend.

Roy Haig, the engineering services manager for the county's roads department, says unexpected problems have led to construction delays.

The county is replacing a large culvert near Camp Northland. The entire width of the road has to be dug out, which prevents traffic from getting by. There's been a detour to the Harburn Road.

The county first had to get permission from the federal Department of Fisheries and Oceans, as well as the Trent Severn Waterway, to restrict water going over the dam at Haliburton Lake. Then the contractor had problems with his machinery.

"He's been fighting water and equipment problems but we hope he's got that beat," says Haig.

The goal is to have the work completed by the end of next week but there's a chance it won't get done until the following week.

Meanwhile, the detour on County Road 1 has ended. Work on two major culverts will be finished this week when the road surface is re-paved, causing minor delays.

It's last week for council hopefuls to come forward

GREG HOEKSTRA

Staff Reporter

With the nomination deadline looming this Friday, political hopefuls have less than a week to either register for this year's municipal election or withdraw their name from the list of current candidates.

To this point there has been no shortage of contenders, with 19 having filed their papers in Dysart and another 11 in the running in the neighbouring municipality of Highlands East.

As it stands right now, Highlands East will be electing a new reeve because incumbent Keith Tallman has not declared his intentions to run for re-election. Instead, residents will choose between Dave Burton and Glen Madill for the municipality's top job, unless of course a newcomer enters the race in the final days of nomination.

In Highlands East Ward 1 incumbent Bill Foote will square off with Jim Mackie, while in Ward 2 Suzanne Partridge will seek re-election against Basil Cox and Lea Kitler. In Ward 3

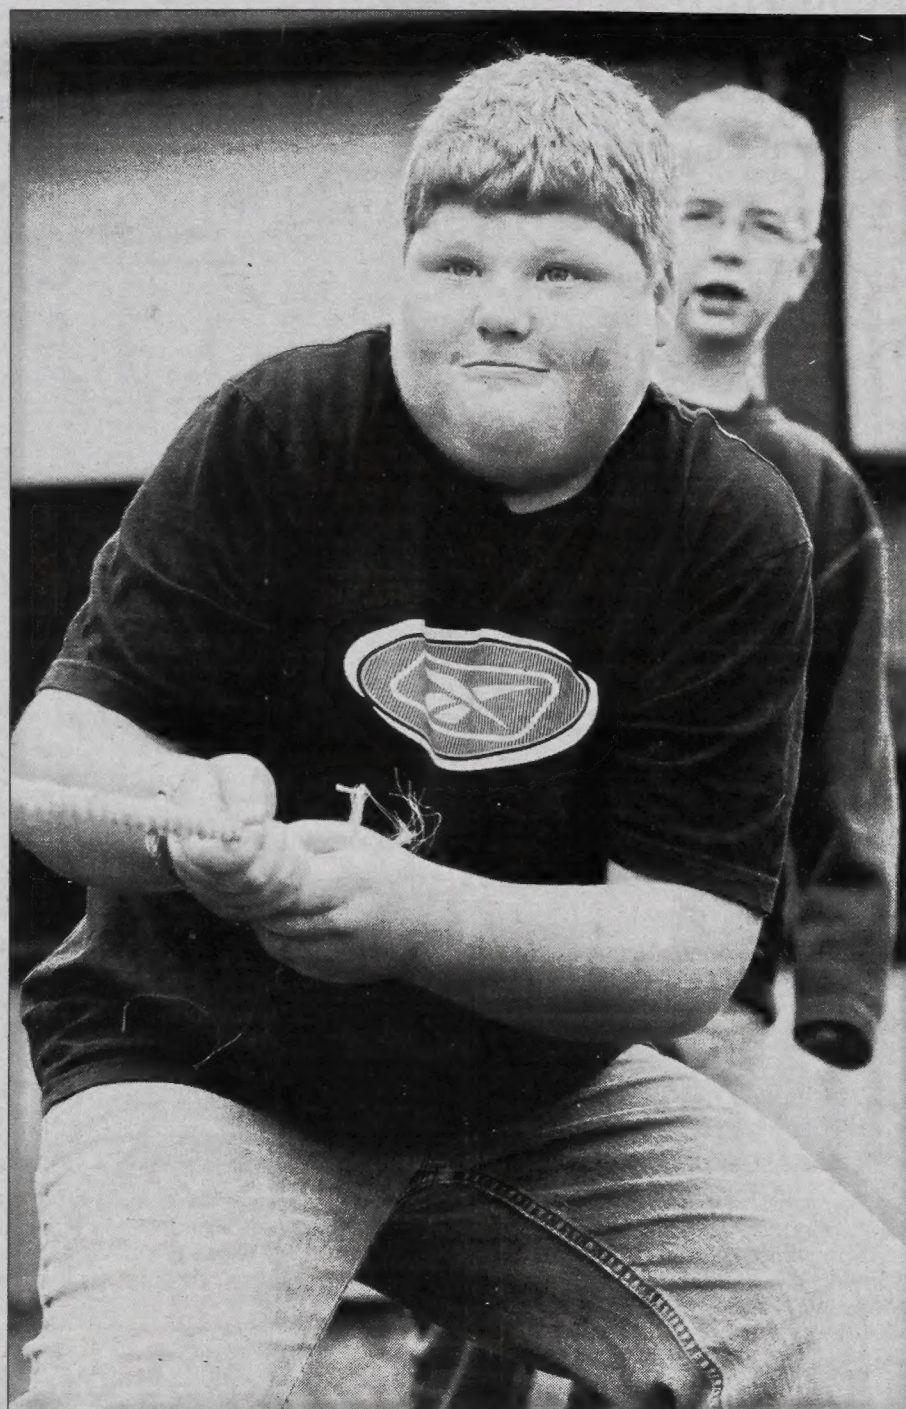

Chuck Viner will challenge incumbent Donna Graham, and in Ward 4 Gary Stoughton and Janis Cole will vie for the final seat at the council table.

In the municipality of Dysart et al not much has changed in the past few weeks, with the exception of one name being added to the list. In Ward 4, Ken Barry has announced his intentions to challenge Janis Parker, who had previously been running unopposed.

Candidates in the other wards include Andrea Roberts and Chester Howse in Ward 1; Gary MacDonald, Derek Knowles, Dennis Casey, Nancy Stinson, and Jamie Cowen in Ward 2; Ross Covert and Mel Smith in Ward 3; and Andy Chvedukas, Carl Sadusek, and incumbent Dan Kay in Ward 5.

The race for Dysart's deputy reeve, meanwhile, will see long-standing incumbent Bill Davis against current Ward 1 councillor Bob Nichol, as well as Jim Henwood, and Walt McKechnie.

Reeve Murray Fearrey has also announced that he will seek re-election one last time, and as of yet he is running unopposed.

Pharmacist joins Family Health Network

Doug Stewart will help patients and doctors use medication wisely

MARTHA PERKINS

Editor

A person with diabetes has just been prescribed a new medication. How is the medication reacting with other drugs? Is the person taking the medication at the proper time, or forgetting to take it altogether?

Or maybe a doctor has just read about a new medication. Is it effective and in which situations should it be prescribed?

These are some of the questions that Doug Stewart has joined the Haliburton Highlands Family Health Team to answer.

As the team's new part-time pharmacist he'll be working with patients and doctors to ensure that local residents remain as healthy as possible.

"A team that's made up of many disciplines can provide better care because they all have something to add," says Beth Archibald, the team's administrator.

She stresses that although a pharmacist has joined the team at the new medical centre, the centre is not opening its own pharmacy. Stewart will not be dispensing drugs at the site and will not be competing with the three local pharmacies. Although he will continue to work part-time at Haliburton Rexall, Archibald notes that, by law, he is not allowed to recommend one pharmacy over another when dealing with clients or doctors.

"In planning this role," says a press release, "many of the community pharmacists were consulted and asked what they would like to see this team member do. Their input was used to develop the job description."

The Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care is funding the new position. It has also approved funding for two nurse practitioners, four registered nurses, one social worker, a part-time registered dietitian and a part-time chiroprapist. Archibald continues to recruit people to fill these other positions.

CASEY LESSARD/ECHO

As a new member of the team, pharmacist Doug Stewart won't be dispensing drugs. Instead, he'll work with patients to make sure medications are being used properly and effectively.

Together the team takes an interdisciplinary approach to dealing with a patient's health and increases the healthcare system's ability to treat the patient as a whole person, not someone with an independent variety of health concerns.

Local doctors are already balancing a demanding workload and Stewart's arrival will help them better care for their patients, Archibald says.

Stewart can help keep them up to date on the efficacy of new and existing medications. He can also give them advice on which medications might better suit an individual patient's needs. "The pharmacist can do an in-depth consultation with the client and come up with recommendations," Archibald says.

After prescribing a medication, doctors will be able to ask patients to make a follow-up appointment with Stewart to make sure they are getting the proper balance of medication, and that the medications are being used as effectively as possible.

Stewart will also host group sessions for people with similar health issues about how to better manage their medication. For instance, asthma sufferers can learn how to maximize the benefits of their puffers.

By using medication properly, problems can be avoided, thereby lessening the burden on the healthcare system.

As Archibald notes, "many chronic diseases are not just one problem" and patients will benefit from having not just one healthcare professional helping them.

Names that stick

NEWCOMERS TO THE HIGHLANDS often require a sort of historical road map to find their way through local references. Let's say you're referring to the building which today houses the Bargain Shop on Haliburton's main street. Until recently it was the home of Valu-mart. And before that it was the Red & White, the name of another grocery store chain. If you arrived in Haliburton when Valu-mart was Valu-mart, you called it Valu-mart. If you grew up shopping at the Red & White, you called it the Red & White – and the newcomers had to be able to translate that into the newer incarnation. Some main street buildings have had so many different tenants that trying to understand local references is like trying to drive through Blairhampton. You get lost in the minutiae.

Recently, Haliburton County Home Support Services, known as Home Support, changed its name to Community Care. Locals knew what Home Support was and although its meaning was pretty obvious, the organization decided that with so many newcomers to the area it was better to adopt a name that was already common across the province. Likewise, the Haliburton County Association for the Mentally Retarded, which for years was referred to as ARC Industries because of the association's long-gone wood-working shop, recently changed its name to the provincial standard, Community Living. Much of its motivation was tied to the dislike of the term mentally retarded. Here at the Echo, the decision was made to change County Life to Cottage Times in order to tie the publication in with a network of Osprey publications by the same name.

Clarity and keeping up with the times were often the goals of these name changes. You can still argue, however, that the new names aren't as effective as the old ones in defining exactly what the organization or publication is about.

Now another organization is about to bravely step into the fray. Family Services of Haliburton County is renaming itself Point in Time Centre for Children, Youth and Parents. It says that people were confused about what Family Services' mandate was and it needed to clarify the organization's role. Families need help at various points in time so Point in Time will be there for them.

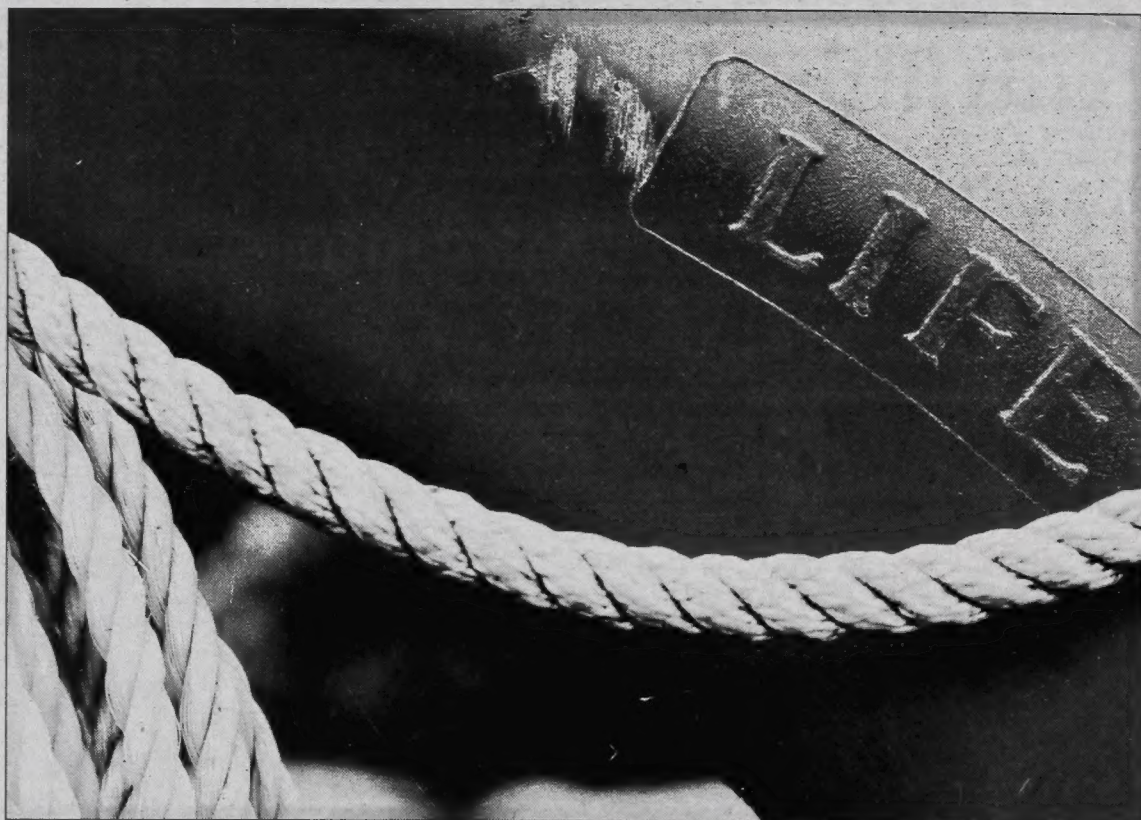

Sorry, but it just ain't going to work. The new name won't be accepted into local vernacular.

Unlike Community Care and Community Living, the name Point in Time does not tie in with other organizations that provide supports to children and their families. It's not as readily recognizable because no one has ever heard of Point in Time anywhere else.

Secondly, without the explanation that families need help at various points in time, the name sounds like it belongs to an antique shop or a store that sells watches, or maybe even compasses. Needlepoint?

Then there's the tendency of humans – and newspapers – to shorten titles. No one is going to refer to Point in Time Centre for Children, Youth and Parents. But what will they shorten it to? Point in Time? "What do think about Point in Time's summer day camp?" People who aren't regularly associated with the organization are not going to know what you mean because Point in Time has no reference to anything else. There are no children, no families in the shortened title.

Family Services might have been staid but at least it provided an easy reference for those not steeped in local history. "Oh yes, Point in Time. You mean Family Services. That's the old Kinark. Now I understand."

Ring of life.

Questioning authority

IT SEEMS TO ME THAT a person cannot pass through life without having to put up with a stupid question or two. The question, "Do you take this woman to be your lawfully married wife?" immediately comes to mind. If you don't, then why the heck are you standing there all decked out in a rented tuxedo?

Oh sure, some people back out of it at the last minute, but for the most part the question is a stupid formality. I figure, once you've showed up in the chapel it's a done deal. Or at least it should be.

Anyway, this whole stupid question issue goes double for the practising outdoorsmen since they generally put themselves in positions that are even more conducive to the asking of stupid questions, the most popular one being, "Did that hurt?"

But even for outdoorsmen, some stupid questions go too far. A prime example is the two-part question that the Canadian Wildlife Service has actually institutionalized on the Migratory Bird Stamp Permit, which is more commonly known as the duck licence.

You see, before you are permitted to pay $17 for the privilege of waiting in a cold wet marsh for birds that might never show up you must answer a few questions on the form besides your name and address.

The first asks: "Did you hunt waterfowl last year?"

This I suppose is a valid question if they are trying to keep stats on how many duck hunters exist. The second question, however, is stupid any way you cut it.

It asks: "Did you purchase a duck licence last year?"

I've always wondered what kind of moron would answer yes to the first question and no to the second.

My faith in human nature is such that I believe that more than one or two people a year are caught by this tricky cross-examination. No doubt they plead guilty as charged because who the heck would want to acknowledge in open court that they are this stupid.

Still, I wonder if our government agencies try to trip up cheaters in other licences too.

For instance, on medical licences do they ask doctors, "Did you practise medicine last year?" and then, "Did you purchase a medical licence last year?"

Believe me, I'm not trying to compare the average duck hunter to the average doctor – let's face it, most doctors don't know the first thing about setting up a decoy spread – but I just wonder why some bureaucrat believes that they can insult a duck hunter's intelligence like this.

I mean why not add a third question: "Did you cheat on your income tax last year?" If you are going to add insult to injury, do it right.

Then again, maybe this series of questions is for the best. After all, anyone who gets them wrong should probably not be trusted with a loaded firearm.

No matter, every year I go through this embarrassing moment with the postal worker who is selling me my duck licence. He or she asks the questions and I answer affirmatively in both cases.

But even as they are transcribing the answers for you, you just know they are wondering, "If the government thinks duck hunters are this stupid, I wonder if I can convince him that he needs to pay us postage on e-mail?"

But, believe me, this duck hunter is not that stupid: I already bought the stamps from my Internet Service Provider.

Birds and cats

THE BIRDS WERE ON the move. Celia was seeing large gatherings massed by her bird feeder. They arrived like coloured clouds, floating above branches or ground cover before settling with a great flurry of wings.

As the weather grew snappier, the birds were gathering into flocks, descending for a while to feed before rising en masse to take to the skies once again. A small single bird, Celia couldn't be sure what kind, alighted on her deck railing and seemed to look around in confusion. It returned several times that afternoon, always landing on the same spot and always with a confused air.

Below it, small black birds with the occasional saucy blue jay among them, pecked determinedly at the ground. Celia doubted there would be a sunflower seed left within a hundred yards of her feeder by the time they were finished. She hated to see them coming around like this because she knew they were loading up for their migration south. Like the Canada geese honking increasingly overhead, the feathery crowds were another sign that winter would soon be arriving to take their place.

The cats were mesmerized by all this activity. They sat together by the patio door, watching. Now that the weather had turned colder and more blustery, they were less eager to be outside. Sometimes, when Celia saw them there by the door, she would open it to let them go out. But often they would just look at the open door without moving. It seemed that over time they had learned the minute they put a paw outside, the birds arose all at once, as if by some magic signal passed instantly among them, leaving the cats with nothing but frustration.

Soon Celia's morning walks would be quiet and still once more. No longer would the birds flutter and fuss at the top of trees, catching the first warm rays of sun, as she walked by. She knew it was not merely the white blanket of winter that made it such a silent season. It was the lack of birds. But for now, they still shook the cedars by her house or rustled in bushes along the roadside.

The other day Celia had been at her friend Georgia's. Georgia was a real cat person and it was her cat Leo who actually ran the house. Leo ate when he wanted, slept where he chose and decided when Georgia should let him out. Though when Celia stopped to think about it, things were not that different at her own house.

So there she and Georgia were, sitting in Georgia's kitchen drinking tea and eating muffins when Celia let out a shriek. Leo was pawing the glass door to come in and in his mouth was a bird. It was still alive, its small head moving ever so slightly side to side, its beak silently opening and closing as if whispering either for mercy or help.

Celia felt like throwing up at the sight. She would never get used to it, not if she lived with cats for a hundred years. But before she could do a thing, Georgia spoke up, telling her not to intervene. "I know," Celia replied. "Once the bird has been in a cat's mouth, there is no saving it. All you do is prolong its death."

At this point Leo, realizing they were not going to open the door, hesitated for a minute and dropped the bird. A few feathers stuck to his mouth as he cocked his head, looking at the poor creature lying there. Celia groaned, in agony herself. Then Leo again picked up the bird and moved to another spot on the deck, farther away from the door. His back was now toward the two women watching from behind the glass. Something must have caught Leo's attention because he again let the bird drop from his mouth.

Only this time, the bird immediately righted itself and with an effort Celia could sense as much as see, it flew up and away. Leo was slow to recover, as though unable to believe what had just happened. Celia watched in wonder, holding her breath and expecting to see the bird drop like a stone in this last wild bid for life. But it didn't drop. In fact after the initial scrambled flutter of its wings, it sailed straight and true up from the deck, around a pin cherry bush to disappear over the roof of Georgia's shed. Leo was left with more feathers in his mouth and egg on his face.

Somewhere out of sight, a small bird was missing some feathers but not the important ones that enabled it to fly. Perhaps, Celia thought, it flew away and then keeled over dead from fright only they just hadn't seen this. But she preferred to think it had found a protected spot in a dense warm cedar where it could rest from its ordeal before joining the others in the flock. Maybe it would even make the flight to Florida or wherever such birds went. She wanted to believe it would be basking in that warm sunshine, chuckling about the cat with the careless mouth. Telling its friends that even a bird can learn how to play possum.

letters to the editor

Who's better than whom?

To the Editor:

Reading Al Luke's letter in last week's edition of the Echo, I found it very offensive to those who were born here, or those who chose to remain or return to live in our great area. Does being born elsewhere make you better than those born in our county?

After all, having been born in the area, I do know "better" and "better" doesn't necessarily mean "change".

A word of thanks to the decorations of the town. I love those magical silvery-blue lights that light the boardwalk and park and the large graceful ferny, flowery plants that attract the eye on main street.

Community makes series successful

To the Editor:

Thank you for your wonderful coverage of the premier of our film series, Those Other Movies, at the Molou Theatre.

The response from the community has been overwhelming and we never thought it would strike the nerve that it did. It was a wonderful night - the cowboy outfits, the speakers, the crowd - all joined together by the wonderful movie, A Prairie Home Companion.

Highlands Media Arts would like to thank the outlets that helped us sell tickets, especially during the last hectic days. Thanks also to the Old Country House for hosting the event after the show, the newspapers and Canoe FM for their enthusiasm.

Thanks also go out to Lou and Molly Consky, owners of the Molou Theatre, for letting us try this program; to our sponsor Beth Tuck at RBC Dominion Securities; and to Mark Coles of First Page SEO for our website, two supporters who really got the ball rolling.

Bracebridge has run a similar program for four years and in their first year they sold only 20 season's passes. We sold more than 200!

We realize there is a demand that we cannot currently fill and we've had a busy week in trying to determine how to most fairly distribute our remaining 50 season's passes. In the end, we have decided to hold a draw on October 4.

Twenty-five names will be drawn to purchase

Apples come in all shapes and sizes

To the Editor:

You have no doubt heard the saying, "Don't judge a book by its cover." Recently, a group visiting the Waverley Brook Farm on Old Donald Road negatively commented on the shape and look of the apples grown on the farm.

Apples, like people, need to be explored before you can assess their true value. The tree these apples were harvested from was planted in 1934 and has provided nutritional, pesticide-free apples all these years. The families who participate in the Waverley Brook Farm program are people who appreciate a healthy lifestyle, and also appreciate the effort and love that is required to grow and harvest these crops. The crops are harvested on the same day they are picked by the customer. That's fresh!

Donna Bisschop, picker and weeder extraordinaire, frequently helps out at the farm and overheard the remarks about the apples. This inspired Donna to write a poem in defence of the apples and at the same time acknowledge the love, effort, and risk taken by those who provide us with these healthy foods. Thanks to Donna for sharing this poem, and I hope you will enjoy and appreciate it as much as I did when I read it.

Perfect Apples
by Donna Bisschop

*In this natural world at Waverley Brook Farm,
We are blessed with participating in creation.
It is a spontaneous World of Sun & Rain & Wind;
Of weeds and potato bugs;
Of shared food ... and shared stories.
We are embracing the community of Earth
By being part of the relationship between
The Plants, the animals, the elements and ourselves.
For all of this, in love, we say Thank-you.*

CASEY LESSARD/Echo

*With every plant taken for this goodness,
For every weed pulled and left as compost for the field,
We see the perfection of the imperfections in nature,
And give thanks.
Sometimes the sun is too sunny...
Sometimes the deer eat the cabbage...
And we give thanks
As the hands of community mend and bend with love.
We learn to be like nature,
Shining through the moments...
Perfect apples on the tree of life -
Slightly flawed, still useful, sometimes sweet
And just a little tart for good measure!*

Support the battle against HIV/AIDS

To the Editor:

On October 15 I will be participating in the Toronto International Marathon benefiting ICA Canada's 'Listen to the Drumming' campaign. I will be running 42 kilometers to help raise funds for HIV/AIDS in Africa.

ICA is an organization whose mission is to develop people's capacity to contribute to positive social change. They, and I, can no longer hear the stories of absolute devastation caused by AIDS without doing our part.

The funds raised will be invested in a program called Youth as Facilitative Leaders (YFL), giving African youth the skills to influence positive social change in their schools and communities.

Two point four million people die in Africa each year; mothers, fathers, sons & daughters who didn't have a fighting chance. It's time to give them a chance.

Please consider making a donation to help me achieve my personal goal of $5,000. I will wear your name proudly on my shirt as I run the marathon and invite you to join me at the finish line to celebrate.

Cheques can be made payable to ICA Canada. You can send your cheque by mail to: ICA Canada c/o Liz Donnery, 655 Queen St. E., Toronto, ON. M4M 1G4.

Thank you so much for your support.

Family Services says its old name confused people

"For example, many child welfare agencies across the province are called child and family services... It gives other service providers in the field the wrong idea about what Family Services' main purpose is."

Fraser adds that the presence of Family Services Canada, a parental and marital counselling agency, further muddies the water.

In addition to, or perhaps because of the confusion around their name, Family Services staff and volunteers have reportedly heard first-hand from clients and residents that there is confusion about their services.

"We were often getting feedback from people who were confused about who we are and what our mandate was, and so it was time to take a look at that and to clarify that in a way that made sense," says Fraser.

The process for a new name began back in February, when Family Services struck a committee with representation from the board of directors, management and staff to come up with a new image for the organization. Mike Jaycock was hired as a marketing consultant to work with the committee.

After approximately three months of short-listing possible names and creating possible logos, Fraser, who was on the committee, says that the name, Point in Time, was chosen partially because it was creative, partially because of the logo, but also because the full name, Point in Time Centre for Youth, Children and Parents, reflects a more accurate image of what services they offer. Sometimes, she says, they work directly with the child and sometimes they work directly with the parents. It's not all about the family, she says.

"We loved the logo," she says. "And that's part of it, because you can have the name but once the names got graphic images attached to them, they were totally different. As words on a flip chart, it was really hard to engage with them so it tells you how important a graphic image is."

Point in Time
Centre for Children, Youth and Parents

While Fraser is reluctant to release the other two options that were being considered as Family Services' new name, she did say that Point in Time was the compromise of sorts.

"One of them was very safe, and the other was kind of out there," she says. "I think Point in Time is a little more ingenious than the safe name, and the other one was just a bit too over the top... But we did move between them."

The new logo, and name will begin to appear on Family Services letterheads, bills and placards just as soon as they finish the legal process, acquiring a supplemental letters patent, of changing their name, which could take six to 12 weeks, Obee says.

Until then, she says, they will be promoting the new name but will have to refrain from using it in a legal way.

Northern Ontario fires keep MNR crews busy

MARTHA PERKINS

Editor

For the crews at the Ministry of Natural Resources' fire base in Haliburton, this autumn has turned out to be much like this past summer - busy.

"It's very unusual," fire operations manager Dave Brown says of the fires still burning in Northern Ontario. "The number and intensity is far from the norm."

Last week he had seven three-people crews deployed in Northern Ontario at a time when crews are usually ending their tours of duty.

Some are near Thunder Bay and Geraldton while others are near Terrace Bay where, on Thursday, there were 55 active fires.

A long summer without rain followed by intense lightning storms in September led to the extreme number of fires. There were 9,000 lightning strikes, causing 95 per cent of the fires.

"Because the ground was so dry the fires are burning deep," says Brown. He expects to have crews out for another couple of weeks.

"One thing in our favour," he adds, "is that days are shorter so there are longer periods with dew on the ground and the nights are cooler."

Some fires are simply being monitored.

The Haliburton fire base usually has 10 three-man crews but since some firefighters are university students who had to go back to school and others had other work commitments, the base has had to call in extra firefighters. Firefighters from British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Quebec are also in Ontario to help out.

Crews can be away from base for 19 days at a time and Brown estimates that all 10 crews have had three trips out over the summer.

Several firefighters just returned from Montana where the situation was "pretty dramatic. The fire behaviour was very intense." One fire grew from 40,000 acres to 120,000 in just 24 hours.

"Fires all have their own characters," Brown says. "They're like teenagers - they want to take control and don't always do what they're told."

The busy summer season had already taken its toll on firefighters who were gearing up to wind down.

In a press release, Minister of Natural Resources David Ramsay thanked the firefighters for their hard work. "I'm very proud," he said, "of our firefighters, who are working long hours under difficult conditions to protect our communities and natural resources."

He estimates that the September fires are costing the ministry an unexpected $70 million.

Some people are wondering if changing weather patterns are to blame, with extended periods without rain.

Brown is hoping that autumn in the Highlands will be a quiet one, however. This is the time of year when people like to burn leaves but the ground, at present, is fairly moist and the fire risk is relatively low. However, he cautions that leaves need only a couple of days to dry out and become an excellent source of fuel for fires. "Keep your fires small and keep water nearby," he cautions.

Motorcyclist injured north of Harcourt

A Brampton motorcyclist was injured when he crossed into the oncoming lane and was hit by a car near Harcourt on September 17.

Luis Parbhu, 39, was northbound on Elephant Lake Road when his 2001

Suzuki XR1 went into the southbound lane. The motorcycle struck a southbound Honda Civic and Parbhu was ejected. He was taken to the Bancroft Hospital with non-life threatening injuries. The Civic's driver was not injured.

Council is positive about Silver Beach plans

spa, massage parlour, hair salon, or small bistro on-site.

Kowalski, who has been dreaming of this project since before he even owned the property, says he's confident the new development would lead to only good things for the surrounding county.

"What we want to bring to Haliburton is 59 new homeowners, new taxpayers, and new purchasers who are going to shop here," he says. "It's quite a different type of development. This isn't just a thrown-together subdivision, this is something that has been well thought out over many years."

In fact, Kowalski first conceived this whole idea back when he still owned a trailer in Silver Beach, rather than owning the entire park. Around the bonfire, he would sometimes muse with fellow campers about what he would do if he owned the property, a prime piece of land with deeded access to a sandy beach on Lake Kashagawigamog. Four years ago, when the park went up for sale, Kowalski took the first step towards realizing that dream.

Whereas similar development proposals often suggest building on a piece of undeveloped land, Kowalski's vision differs insofar that it would take property already used for tourism, and transform it in to a neighborhood of permanent residences. Likewise, the new community would be desirable from a municipal standpoint, since all of its roads and properties would be privately maintained by the owners.

However, one bone of contention early on in the process was the issue of added boat traffic on the waters of Lake Kashagawigamog. But Kowalski says surrounding cottagers shouldn't be overly concerned about an increase in the number of boats, as he has already thought up some possible ways to keep the numbers down.

"We've been considering a fleet of three boats – one pontoon boat, one power boat, and one fishing boat – that would be owned by the corporation, available for the residents to book and share when relatives come up to visit on a July long weekend, for example," he says.

The new lifestyle community would also keep the 28 boat docks that have been historically associated with the Silver Beach property, meaning nearly 50 per cent of the residents could own their own water vessel if they desired. Kowalski says he doesn't anticipate demand would exceed that, due to the community's target market.

"With maturing people, not all of them want the responsibility of a boat anyway," he says.

From an environmental standpoint, the development shouldn't put much of a strain on the surrounding area, says Kowalski. With nearly 76 trailers already on-site for the summer months, the property is already hooked up to full municipal sewage services, and Kowalski says his company would have a number of additional wells drilled to supply the community with water.

Likewise, although the property is nearly 22 acres in all, Kowalski says only 15 will be developed, in order to leave some forest, snowshoe trails, and deer yard at the back of the property intact. All in all, he says his intentions are to change the physical landscape as little as possible, but the economic landscape as much as possible.

"So far there has been very little opposition, but if there is any opposition, it really boils down to, 'What would you rather have?'" says Kowalski. "Seventy-six trailers or 59 year-round homes? We believe we're really doing something valuable with the property, and we hope that the spirit of what we're doing will catch on."

But as the current owner of the Silver Beach trailer park, and former trailer owner himself, there is still one group of people that Kowalski is still concerned with, and that is the current users of the park, some of whom are good friends of his.

"That's probably one of the hardest parts of this for me," he says. "In that park we have the highest quality of people you could ask for."

With that in mind, Kowalski says that should the project be approved, he will probably allow for a year of pre-sales with the hope that some of the trailer owners would consider coming on-board with the new project.

"I think they would be a real benefit to this community, and a lot of them are at that age where they could retire here, could live here and could become a part of this community," he says.

“There is a need for more housing. We end up losing [retirees] to Barrie, Bobcaygeon or some other community.”

MURRAY FEARREY

Dysart Reeve Murray Fearrey says that so far his council has been impressed by Kowalski's plans, which are more thorough and well-researched than council is accustomed to, he says. And although the project is still working its way through the public process, and there's a way to go before it receives the official stamp of approval, council is nonetheless positive about the impact such a development could have on the municipality.

"There's still a lot of work to be done, and there's a public process to go through, but in general I'd say that council is very positive about seeing that particular property developed," he says. "It's a win-win for the community, for taxes, for development, and for the economy... and in the long run it's not a big onus on the municipality to maintain, because it's self-contained."

Fearrey says that the project has also tweaked councillors' interest because it addresses a long-standing problem within the municipality – a lack of affordable housing to draw in new taxpayers, and a lack of facilities to keep retirees in the community.

"It's certainly something that council has been aware of, that there is a need for more housing. I'm sure we've all heard of people who can no longer stay in their summer home, or their home on the lake, and they want to move into Haliburton but they can't because there are no facilities. We end up losing them to Barrie, Bobcaygeon, or some other community."

"This hopefully will fill that void, so we see it as positive," Fearrey says. "Hopefully we'll work through the process and it will eventually become an asset to the municipality."

Hometown hero can add another notch to his belt

GREG HOEKSTRA

Staff Reporter

West Guilford's hometown hero Bernie Nicholls can soon add another triumph to his list of lifetime accomplishments.

Despite the fact that he never lived in Lindsay, nor did he lace up skates for a local club, the former NHL power centre is slated to be inducted into the Lindsay and District Sports Hall of Fame during a ceremony next month.

Nicholls was born and raised in West Guilford but his family also had roots in the areas of Bobcaygeon and Little Britain, which are now included in the amalgamated City of Kawartha Lakes. Over the summer months Nicholls played fastball for a team based in Little Britain, which made him a well-known player in the local sports community.

Committee members for the hall of fame felt that despite having never lived there permanently, Nicholls' strong ties to the area made him a suitable candidate for induction into their institution.

"It's Lindsay and district, but the boundaries aren't necessarily defined geographically, and exceptions can be made," says committee member Mike O'Brien. "A lot of people knew Bernie in Lindsay and area. It wasn't as if he was a stranger. He was well known, so the committee felt it was a pretty easy decision."

Nicholls says the decision took him by surprise, simply because he had not played hockey in that area. But despite having a number of major league triumphs under his belt from years as a professional hockey player, he says that his induction into the Lindsay hall is still a great honour that he doesn't take lightly.

"Any time you are rewarded for what you've done, in any manner, is a great honour," he says. "It's a great feeling, but as much as it is for me it is for everybody who helped me along the way."

Perhaps just as rewarding for Nicholls will be the fact that he joins familiar company in the hall of fame. Both his uncles, John and Dave, are already honourees in recognition of their championship seasons with the Little Britain intermediate hockey club.

Nicholls is best remembered for his explosive NHL career, in which he tallied a total of 1,200 career points in 18 seasons. His résumé includes stints with the New York Rangers, Edmonton Oilers, New Jersey Devils, Chicago Blackhawks and San Jose Sharks. He also spent a season and a half playing alongside Wayne Gretzky on the Los Angeles Kings.

But long before Nicholls was called up to the big league he learned the ropes at the local arena or on a shovelled sliver of West Guilford's Pine Lake, the birthplace of his greatest hockey memories, he says.

"The fondest memories of a kid are of playing outdoors, on the lake. We also had an arena at the back of our school in West Guilford, and to me there are no better memories than those," he says. "I was really fortunate to have the arena behind the school. I used to play there until late at night. It was awesome."

Nicholls will be inducted into the Lindsay and District Sports Hall of Fame during an official ceremony on October 22 at Lindsay's Victoria Park Armoury. Following the ceremony memorabilia from his career – including sweaters, hockey sticks, and photographs – will be on display at the hall of fame, located at the Lindsay Rec-Plex arena. Admission is free of charge and open to the public, so feel free to stop in and take a glimpse into the storied past of a local hockey legend.

Senior girls' basketball team hopes for fresh start

CASEY LESSARD

Staff Reporter

Roland Zilla is hoping to start again as he retakes the helm of the Haliburton Highlands Secondary School senior girls basketball team after a year off.

"The goal is to turn the program around and be competitive again," Zilla said.

"They're all young," he said of his overhauled squad. "The junior girls coming up, which is most of the team, look very promising. We only have two Grade 12s and two girls from LCVI. They're really going to help. Genny Ross is one of them and she's going to lead the team."

He expects to build slowly but progressively on lessons learned in practice.

"We will look inexperienced to start. That's because of the way I coach. With full court press, you have a lot of turnovers. By October, they'll have it. It takes that long. You have to repeat it."

Zilla expects his players will struggle most with the intensity of defensive play.

"The important thing is when teams pressure us, how well we handle that full court pressure. LCVI has a very good team this year, even though they lost Genny. We're going to play teams who are more skilled than we are. Can we handle that pressure?"

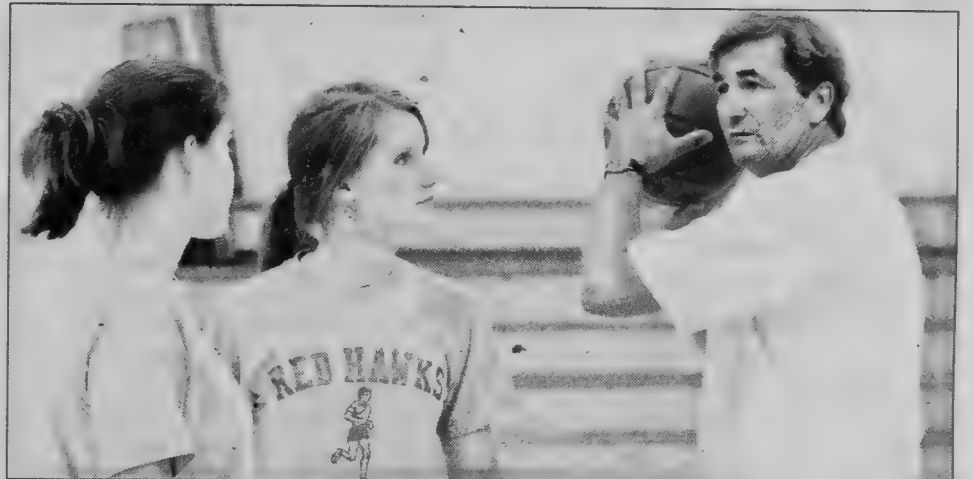

The girls hosted the first half of a season tip-off tournament Friday, losing their first game to St. Thomas Aquinas, but defeating Fenelon Falls 30-28 Friday night. The tournament moved to St. Thomas Aquinas Saturday; the girls lost both games that day.

Above, Natalia Rico drives to the hoop Friday as her team hosted the first day of a two-day tip-off tournament. Rico led the team in scoring in one of two games Saturday.

Above right, Ashleigh Schollig scored 11 points for HHSS in Friday's 30-28 win over Fenelon Falls.

Minor hockey action

Hannah Casey navigates her way around the pylons set up during a girls minor hockey practice. The team consists of atoms, novices and tykes, and will play at the atom level. Coach Dan Marsden (seen below) said he wanted to move the team from an exhibition level last year to a team that plays as part of a league. The team's first game is October 7 in Minden from 12-1pm.

Running game keeps season opener close

Lane Schmid proves why he's the captain of the junior football team, carrying for 109 yards on 13 carries in the team's season opening 12-7 loss against Andy Scott. Cody Griffin ran for 57 yards and a touchdown on ten carries while Gavin Barker was the leading tackler with eight. Coach Duncan Luciak will be treating his brother-in-law (who coaches the Andy Scott team) to a special Thanksgiving meal because of the game's outcome. "The team held up well in their first football experience," Luciak said. "The signs are there, but we need to polish individual skills and pay attention to details that will improve our performance next Thursday in Campbellford."

Haliburton swimmer wins silver in national event

ROBERT McIVOR

Special to The Echo

For the first time in many years, two seniors traveled to Manitoba to participate in the national Senior Games from August 29 to September 3.

Aileen Bruce swam in three events. She placed second (silver medal) in the 50 metre breaststroke, fourth in the 50 metre free style sprint, and sixth in the 100 metre free style spring.

Ev Stata walked in two prediction walking activities.

She placed fourth in the 400 metre and was out by a total of only 10 seconds over two attempts and sixth in the 1000 metre event.

Both ladies had a wonderful time and even though they paid their own way they would like to attend the next Canada Senior Games in Moncton in August 2008.

Actifest results

Meanwhile, earlier in August, the city of Hamilton host Actifest 2006.

Thirty-three senior participants from District 11 - Haliburton/Muskoka competed over three days in 15 different games. In all they won four medals.

Vera Ann Ruttan and Margaret Norton from Gravenhurst got a silver in Bid Euchre.

Laverne Newman and Andry Klischenk from Cardiff got a silver in Carpet Bowling.

Jack Cox from Haliburton got a silver in Prediction Walking in the 75-plus category and Margaret Ramema from West Guilford got a bronze in the ladies prediction swim.

Everyone had a supper time and all would like to go again in 2008.

These events are open to seniors 55 years and older.

If anyone wants to know more about this activity please phone Robert McIvor at 754-9747.

Ev Stata was out by 10 seconds in her prediction walks. She's carrying the hat she was given for participating in the first Haliburton Senior Games in 1986.

Legions gather in Haliburton

The fall colours got some competition when Legions from across Ontario brought their flags, their drums and their kilts to Haliburton village on Sunday. The Haliburton Legion hosted the annual drumhead service, which began with a parade down main street from the Legion to Head Lake Park, pausing at the cenotaph. Sarah Varty of the Haliburton Pipes and Drums far left, is one of the band members who took part in the time-honoured tradition of using drums to make an altar for a Sunday service when a church was a long way away.

LHIN wants your feedback

Volunteers from nine local advisory teams along with board members and staff from the Central East Local Health Integration Network (Central East LHIN) are going to be in Haliburton in early October to ask the general public for feedback on the first draft of the Central East LHIN's Integrated Health Service Plan (IHSP).

"We're interested in hearing what people have to say about the plan before it is presented to the Ministry," says Foster Loucks, chair of the Central East LHIN Board of Directors. "This is a document that is being developed by the community, for the community and will be owned by the community. It will have a positive impact on the future health of our families and neighbours."

The final Integrated Health Service Plan, to be published in mid-November, will outline the local vision for health care, provide information on current and future demographics and health care needs and identify key priorities for change.

Health care providers and community residents, who are participating on either local advisory teams or regional networks have been working with Central East LHIN staff over the summer to provide grass-roots direction on three key health care priorities – Seamless Care for Seniors; Chronic Disease Prevention and Management; and, Mental Health and Addictions – which will be featured in the Integrated Health Service Plan.

The LHIN, which has responsibility for planning, coordinating, integrating and funding health care services at the local level, including hospitals, community care access centres, long term care facilities, community health centres, community support services and mental health and addiction services, will use the Integrated Health Service Plan as a strategic guide for the future delivery of these services.

Information on the Integrated Health Service Plan is posted on the Central East LHIN website at www.centraleastlin.on.ca. The general public can also contact the Central East LHIN at 1-866-804-5446 if they have any questions.

People are invited to drop by Todd's Independent on October 12, 3 p.m. – 8 p.m.

Grade 11 student Bronwen Rolfe and Grade 9 student Carlin Dixon were almost indistinguishable as clones dressed as "emo kids meets the 80s" during Clone Day, a spirit week event held Wednesday.

Musicians make jamming a sweet affair

community news

wilberforce

Hilda Clark

448-2018

Northern Jam is coming to Wilberforce on Saturday, September 30. They will be at the Lloyd Watson Centre from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m. jamming. That is, they will be playing, singing and having fun. Do plan to join in the fun. Northern Jam is a group of musicians who get together for their own enjoyment. They love to play. They like to share their music. They often play for seniors at Hyland Crest and Highland Wood. Members of the group include Neil Howe, Julie Chambers, Marilyn Giles, Al Blanchard, Ted Scholtes, Ron Sedley, Audrey Sedley and Bill Rinne, all from the Haliburton area. They often jam at the home of Bill and Jane Rinne in Highland Grove.

On September 30 you can listen, tap your toes, hum along and, yes, even dance if the music stirs you to. Adults for $5 and kids for $1 can enjoy a few hours of this family music night. Tea, coffee and cookies are included in the price. Pop, water and packages of chips will be for sale. The recreation committee will use proceeds to improve, repair or replace the signboard at the front of the Lloyd Watson Centre. Northern Jam welcomes other musicians to join in. So bring voices and instruments and join the jam session.

As part of Legion Week members of the Wilberforce Royal Canadian Legion and Ladies Auxiliary attended service at St.

Margaret's Anglican Church on Sunday September 17. They presented their colours and joined in singing O Canada and God Save The Queen. Legion President and Chaplain Dave Burton read the first lesson. In her sermon the Rev. Harriman included thoughts of her son-in-law Sgt. Zack Donovan who is presently serving with the Canadian Forces in Afghanistan. A time of fellowship and refreshments followed the service.

Fine September weather over the weekend was greatly welcomed for the Cardiff Heritage Day at the Highland Grove Recreation Centre and grounds. Throughout Saturday afternoon people enjoyed burgers, hot dogs and corn as they visited, shopped at the yard and book sale, and spent lots of time going through the collections of histories of many Cardiff Township pioneers. They appreciated the music of Northern Jam as they entertained outside under the marquee tent.

The restoration of the old log school house is progressing well. Congratulations to the organizers and workers for an excellent event.

The weather held until Sunday evening when the gospel sing took place on the grounds of the Cross Roads Restaurant. Various musicians presented gospel music from the patio at the side of the restaurant. They included Rex and Pat Warr of Peterborough and Chuck Dovell followed by Melannie and Elwood Storey. The audience - in lawn chairs, cars, and standing - clapped and hummed along. Thanks to Wayne Rutter of the Full Gospel Church for organizing the event.

St. Margaret's Anglican Church was buzzing on Thursday, September 14, as the Anglican Church women (ACW) from churches in the Haliburton Victoria Deanery met for a day of fellowship. Hot coffee and muffins were welcome to the women who came on this rainy morning from their homes and churches in Beaverton, Dunsford, Fenelon Falls, Minden, Haliburton and Wilberforce. The day included Holy Eucharist, a business meeting and a delicious pot luck lunch. Eveyn Beebe of St Georges, Haliburton and a member of Canadian World Vision made a fine presentation about a visit to Africa on behalf of that group in 2005. She spoke of some successful projects and of the great needs of people in many countries. Reminds one again of how fortunate we are in this country and how important it is to share with others here and abroad. The collection from the day will be channelled for the health of children and women through the Primates (Anglican) World Relief and Development Fund.

There is a Municipal Candidates Meeting at the Lloyd Watson centre on Sat. Sept. 30 from 2 to 4 p.m..

Speaking of the November election we see lots of signs for councils. Who is running for School Board? When there was still a Haliburton County Board of Education there was great interest and competition in all ten municipalities for seat on School Board. Now we get one spot on the Trillium Lakelands and no apparent interest. Are there no interested concerned parents in the county to run for this position? At least it would allow citizens to hear about this part of our government at candidates' meetings.

Rabies clinic offers low cost shots

Local pet owners can give their dogs and cats the best shot at reducing the risk of rabies.

Low-cost rabies vaccination clinics for dogs and cats will be held at various locations in the area on Saturday, September 30.

Haliburton Veterinary Services is offering two clinics: at the Haliburton fire hall from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. and at the Wilberforce fire hall from 10 a.m. to noon.

Cost of a rabies vaccination is $15 per animal, including tax. The clinics are organized by local veterinarians, the Haliburton, Kawartha, Pine Ridge District Health Unit and the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Health Unit.

Rabies is a serious disease caused by a virus. If left untreated, rabies can be fatal. People and animals can get rabies by being licked, bitten or scratched by an animal with rabies.

Dogs and cats are very susceptible to rabies and can easily pass it on to their owners. For that reason, the HKPR District Health Unit encourages local residents to take advantage of the low-cost rabies vaccination clinics.

"Do it for the good of your health and that of your pets," says Anne Alexander, director of environmental health, with the HKPR District Health Unit.

Many people consider dogs and cats part of the family. In that case, Alexander says pets deserve the same kind of protection as any other family member. Vaccination of cats and dogs is also mandatory in the area, so the low-cost clinics are a good way for owners to get their pets caught up on a required shot.

"Don't wait until it's too late," says Alexander. "Rabies vaccine helps ensure the well-being of a cat or dog and benefits everyone in the end."

This was a memorable occasion.

A reminder that poster and literary competitions are getting underway shortly and all young people from Wilberforce School are encouraged to enter. These competitions are excellent and each year our students get better and better. The entries will be based on a remembrance theme, reminding the children that the freedom they enjoy today was won through the loss of many young lives. Students will be hearing from our Branch's Youth Education Officer, Valerie Smith, on October 5. We hope veteran Len Crawford will be able to attend the presentation and answer some of the children's questions. Each child receives a participation ribbon and first-place winners receive $25 plus a certificate and ribbon. Second place winners receive $15 plus a certificate and ribbon and third place winners receive $10 plus a certificate and ribbon.

Please remember to renew your membership. If you don't have your Legion membership yet, please keep in mind the early bird price is $38. Your continued support is important to keep our branch a strong force within our community. Part of each membership is sent to command which helps to keep many veteran and community programs sponsored by the Royal Canadian Legion going. After November 30 membership will be $40.

Royal Canadian Legion Ontario Command had 156,124 members for the year ending 2005.

A haircut that helps kids with cancer

Cindy Ablett is getting her hair cut. At 10:30 a.m. at her Esso Service Station on Friday, September 29, her long tresses will fall to the floor.

Actually her hair will not hit the floor. It will be carefully shorn because Cindy is donating her hair to "Angel Hair For Kids". It will be used to create wigs for children who have lost their hair during cancer treatment.

You can help the cause too by giving financial support for Angel Hair For Kids. Cindy has been accepting donations and will give them on behalf of the community of Wilberforce. Support Cindy as she gives her hair on Friday.

We are saddened by the death of Gord Monk. On Monday, September 18, Gordon A. Monk died peacefully at his home in Minden.

Gord has touched the lives of so many in this village, in the county and beyond, not only through his work but as a caring human being. Whether as an individual or as part of the various organizations to which he belonged or the causes he supported Gord Monk participated wholeheartedly and cheerfully.

In this area we have heard him raise his voice with the Gentlemen of Song, saw him romp about with his Shriner buddies in the Good Times parades and enjoy pancakes and syrup with his family at Maplefest.

Gord comforted many with this friendly manner and generous spirit. May his family be comforted in knowing that Gord was appreciated and highly regarded. For surely he was "a friend to all and a mentor to many".

Sympathy is extended to Donna, Kirsten and Barry, Cameron and Liz, to Gord's beloved grandchildren, to his sisters and all of his family.

Children's Water Festival to make a splash with kids

community news

harcourt

Valerie Smith
448-3640

Have you ever wish you could clone yourself in order to do all the things you wished to do in a day or in a week? Well this week there are so many exciting things taking place that I wish I could do just that.

I received a call from my almost six-year-old granddaughter this week inviting me to come to her school's Terry Fox Day and sponsor her in the Terry Fox National School Run Day to be held this upcoming Friday the 29th. When I asked her how far she planned on running her reply was that Terry Fox would be running not her.

The 2nd Annual Haliburton-Muskoka Children's Water Festival is taking place at the Kinark Outdoor Centre this Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. Over 1,350 Grades 3 to 6 students are gearing up for this great event covering 35 interactive activity centres. The children will learn water science, attitudes, technology, conservation and protection. My husband and I will be there for three days presenting to Grade 3 students an activity centre titled "doing the laundry". This may sound easy; however, we will be using a scrub board and washing tub.

It is a great day of activity and learning for all the children and adults as well.

Saturday the 30th will be just as full.

The Haliburton Highlands Writers' and Editors' network is hosting Books Alive at the Red Umbrella Inn on Highway 35 just North of Minden from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Many local authors will be on hand with their books. Visit then plan on having lunch with the authors. Cost for luncheon is $20.00.

Also on Saturday the 30th is the IB & O Trail Mixer scavenger relay race starting at 9:30 a.m. and running through until 2 p.m.. Each relay team must consist of one horse, one runner, one ATV and one cyclist. Meet in Tory Hill in the park for this great event.

Upcoming events for Harcourt and surrounding communities:

September 27: Bingo is held every Wednesday evening starting at 7:30 p.m. at the Harcourt Community Centre. For more information call Debbie Shatraw at 448-3155.

September 28: Progressive euchre is held every Thursday evening starting at 7:30 p.m. at the Harcourt Community Centre. Cost is only $2. Come out for an evening of great fun playing euchre followed by a light social lunch. For further information please call Mel Smith at 448-3640.

Riding for others

Although wet weather deterred a few members of Windsor's Ford Employees Club North from enjoying their annual colour tour through the Highlands, their generosity hasn't dried up. The group of motorcycle enthusiasts donated $1,285 to the 4Cs food bank. Most of the money was raised through raffle sales for a hockey jersey autographed and donated by Walt McKechnie and $360 was collected in a pass-the-hat on Saturday morning. Since the raffle continues until early December, more donations will be forthcoming. Murray Tripp of the 4Cs gratefully accepted the donation from organizer Dan Slote, who also brought 24 cases of canned vegetables with him (in his truck, not on his motorcycle.)

Helicopter flight only the start of celebration

community news

west guilford

Eleanor Cooper
754-2388

Jean Frazer thought that she'd had her 90th birthday with that glorious helicopter flight, but her family and Laurel Yateman thought otherwise.

Her sister, Helen Smith, and her brother with his wife Dolly and their daughter Lynne, a niece, Helen with her daughter from Barrie and her seven-month baby boy all came in to call on Saturday, Sept. 16. Several neighbours also came with good wishes and cards. Visitors brought flowers and gifts, and the celebration, a total surprise to Jean, continued with delicious refreshments and a scrumptious birthday cake. Good fun with a gracious, lovely lady. Many happy returns, Jean.

Bill and Myra Marshall have returned from three weeks with their daughter Tracey and her husband Jim Krosschell at Sturgeon Lake, where the Krosschells run a hunting and fishing lodge. Jim guides for this work and the fishing is good, says Bill.

Anka Barry has returned from three weeks in Germany where she enjoyed the company of her parents in Dresden, her sisters and many friends from school days.

Keep in mind and attend if you can the Centre's committee meeting on September 27 at 7:30. The more people, the simpler the tasks and the less time it takes. It could even be fun!

The Will Boice homestead has been sold, the place where Cora, Rex, Petra and brothers and sisters were born, and where Rex and Jean Boice's family were born: Max, Lois and Carol. The homestead passed into the hands of Jan (Cora and Carm's youngest daughter), and Bill Hlywka. Many a Cooper-Boice reunion has been held there over the years. We wish the new owner well.

Someone kept track of the members at Marj Bain's eightieth birthday party, and counted 112 present. Weather was great on September 10 for the event and everyone was happy to be able to greet Marj, including her sister, Janet Barley and husband Robert Barley from Worcester, England. This was a sudden surprise which put Marj on top of the world with happiness. A brother-in-law from Surrey, Leslie James also made the trip to congratulate the guest of honour. Marj wishes to thank everyone for attending as well as those who brought flowers and gifts. She is also thankful to Marge Nicholls and Shirley Sisson who managed the delicious and plentiful lunch for all of us. 'Twas a truly memorable and happy day.

Congratulations to Elwood and Janet Morrison who celebrated their 38th wedding anniversary last week.

Kevin Kanfers, grandson of Betsie Kanfers, was at the home on Grass Lake from August 18-30. Kevin is a marine engineer on the J.W. Tully Coast Guard vessel on the west coast. The work is mostly search and rescue, and Kevin completed his years of training in order to achieve this position. He enjoyed the time here visiting his relatives.

The Dunnewalds of West Guilford and the Brogdens of North Shore (of Maple Lake area) are members of the Haliburton Easy Ryders, biking usually every week on trips of various lengths. Last week was a return trip from Lakefield to Peterborough.

The next one was from Wiarton on Sept. 19, 20, and 21 (three days, two nights) up the Bruce peninsula. Yearly, a trip is planned for those who wish to take advantage of it, to go biking abroad. A year ago it was the Holland and one of the couples at the time was the Edwards, Barry & Barbara (Prentice). This year it's to be Tuscany. Members of the group range from Bobcaygeon to Bracebridge area.

NOTICE OF A PUBLIC MEETING TO INFORM THE PUBLIC OF A ZONING BY-LAW AMENDMENT

TAKE NOTICE that the Council for The Corporation of the Municipality of Highlands East will be holding a public meeting under Section 34 of the Planning Act, R.S.O. 1990, c.P. 13 as amended, to inform the public of a proposed Zoning By-law Amendment.

Time: 10:00 am

DETAILS OF THE ZONING BY-LAW AMENDMENT

The purpose of the proposed by-law is to amend the Restricted Area (Zoning) By-Law No. 2005-29 as amended, as it applies to lands described as Part of Lots 11, 12, 13 and 14, Concession 10, and Part of Lots 14 and 15, Concession 11 in the former geographic Township of Glamorgan, now in the Municipality of Highlands East.

The application, if approved, would rezone a portion of the subject lands, from the Commercial Tourist Exception (CT-3) Zone to a zone categories or categories that would permit the development of a recreational lifestyle community. The recreational lifestyle community is proposed to be comprised of 48 detached dwellings, 63 semi-detached dwellings, an existing hotel, as well as ancillary facilities such as a restaurant, community centre and communal docking and beach areas.

It is noted that other planning approvals will be required to permit the proposed development. These include a Plan of Subdivision and Plan of Condominium and a site plan agreement. Get your feet in step

Did you know that soaking your feet for longer than ten minutes at a time can dry out your skin?

Did you know that too much foot powder can cause rubbing, making sore skin between your toes?

Foot care is for every age. The elderly or people with diabetes, rheumatoid arthritis or circulatory problems are a good fit for the return of the VON's foot care clinics. Healthy feet contribute to an active and independent lifestyle. This is something everyone wants.

VON nurses are trained to the advanced level of foot care. Each appointment involves assessment of the feet and lower limbs. Care is given to the skin removing corns or calluses. Education is part of the treatment. Information is given on the best footwear, socks, care of skin and other helpful tidbits. Nails are thinned, trimmed and filed.

The first foot care appointment lasts about 45 minutes and costs $30. Every other visit is about 30 minutes and costs $24. For veterans who qualify through Veterans Affairs, foot care is covered. All clinics begin at 9:00 a.m. The Haliburton VON Foot Care Clinic is held in the Community Care Drop-In Centre at 83 Maple Street the first Wednesday of each month. The next clinic is October 4.

To book your appointment please call 705-745-9155 or 1-800-743-6255 and ask to speak to Laurie.

Conquer your food label confusion

Do you lose sleep over the thought of grocery shopping? If you do, you're not alone.

Many local residents experience confusion as they try to understand nutritional information and claims on food products. It's a condition called "confused shopper syndrome," and typically strikes in the grocery store.

Thankfully, local health officials can offer a cure.

Health for Life and the Haliburton, Kawartha, Pine Ridge District Health Unit are organizing 'Figuring Out Food Labels' Tours next month in Haliburton County. The free tours will run:

• In Minden on Tuesday, October 3, at 10:30 a.m.

or

• In Haliburton on Thursday, October 12, at 6:30 p.m.

Join Registered Dietitian Rosie Kadwell on the tour as she helps participants unlock the mysteries of food labels, understand claims made on food products, and make healthier food choices when they go grocery shopping.

The tours are free, but pre-registration is required. Call the local Health Unit office at (705) 457-1391, ext. 245, to sign up or find out more information about the event.
